Are the Best They Can Be

Invest in ISSA Government Organizational Membership

The Information Systems Security Association (ISSA) serves security and assurance professionals ranging from the first year systems administrator to your senior-most executive. More than 60% of our members are CISSP certified and 25% represent government entities. Many hold additional certifications including the SSCP, CISA and CISM. Through their membership in ISSA, government security and assurance specialists have access to affordable and intensive certification study courses in their own communities. These courses are designed by ISSA chapters and taught by members who are working professionals in the industry. Our chapters are proud that more than 90% of the participants in their courses pass the exam the first time.

ISSA connects your staff to a community of 10,000 trusted peers in 70 countries who collaborate to combat the security threats of today and those that will face us tomorrow. Attacks and attackers are increasingly sophisticated. We must mobilize our collective expertise and resources to anticipate and prevent their evolution.

ISSA enables us to create a common baseline of concepts, principles and applications for the profession and to build on that base by incorporating the knowledge we gain from formal training as well as our on the job experience. Together we can set the standards for the future and ensure the security of our data and systems, which play an increasingly critical role in our ability to achieve our missions.

Chapter meetings in more than 125 cities worldwide offer presentations from industry leaders on trends and advances. ISSA provides a valuable forum for informal exchange and problem-solving with reliable colleagues – all while earning CPE credits for maintaining and expanding your expertise.
